Councilmember Cole: I apologize to the community for the misunderstanding I may have caused

I made some remarks at Tuesday's City Council meeting that have provoked an overwhelming response from the residents of the Fourth Council District, and I need to correct those remarks.

First and foremost, let me apologize to my community for miscommunicating my concerns surrounding violence affecting black Americans. I understand your reaction because I did not express my concerns clearly, and instead related two distinct issues to one another.

I want to be clear in telling you, my community, that I condemn racial profiling in all forms and all instances. I do not condone racial discrimination by the police or any institution.

Tackling inequality has always been a priority of mine, and it's why I serve on the Public Safety and Livable Neighborhoods Committee. I regret that I failed to communicate my position on racial injustice earlier this week.

I do hope my previous work in this community demonstrates these priorities and I hope you'll join me in my continued pursuit of equity for San Diegans.

In the coming weeks I will be making a push for substantial changes with regard to police practices. I've heard your call for action, and I plan to take it. Please work with me to create solutions and improve relations between the police force and the community they serve.
